About me

My name is Roland. I am currently studying web development. I am mostly interested in front-end development, that is why I chose to learn Javascript and React. I have a background in graphic design and I am also interested in UI and UX design, because I think that a good front-end developer should think in logic- and design-terms too. At the university I specialized in E-business which helped me to learn a lot about this area, from the Hungarian market leaders of start-ups and ecommerce businesses.

I think the most important skill one can have in today's world is the skill of learning. This is why I am constantly trying to learn new things and try to improve my skills.

In my freetime, I love reading, studying and exploring new fields that interest me (such as computer science, blockchain technologies and cryptography, neurobiology, health and wellbeing, psychology, finances, UI and UX design), exercising, drinking quality green tea, travelling, spending time with friends, riding a motorbike, eating great foods or just chilling in a nice spot with a view. That's it for my brief introduction, if you are interested in more don't hesitate to contact me!
